How Schools Really Matter Douglas B. Downey, 2020-12-07 Most of us assume that public schools in America are unequal that the quality of the education varies with the location of the school and that as a result children learn more in the schools that serve mostly rich white kids than in the schools serving mostly poor black kids But it turns out that this common assumption is misplaced As Douglas B Downey shows in How Schools Really Matter achievement gaps have very little to do with what goes on in our schools Not only do schools not exacerbate inequality in skills they actually help to level the playing field The real sources of achievement gaps are elsewhere A close look at the testing data in seasonal patterns bears this out It turns out that achievement gaps in reading skills between high and low income children are nearly entirely formed prior to kindergarten and schools do more to reduce them than increase them And when gaps do increase they tend to do so during summers not during school periods So why do both liberal and conservative politicians strongly advocate for school reform arguing that the poor quality of schools serving disadvantaged children is an important contributor to inequality It's because discussing the broader social and economic reforms necessary for really reducing inequality has become too challenging and polarizing it's just easier to talk about fixing schools Of course there are differences that schools can make and Downey outlines the kinds of reforms that make sense given what we know about inequality outside of schools including more school exposure increased standardization and better and fairer school and teacher measurements How Schools Really Matter offers a firm rebuke to those who find nothing but fault in our schools which are doing a much better than job than we give them credit for It should also be a call to arms for educators and policymakers the bottom line is that if we are serious about reducing inequality we are going to have to fight some battles that are bigger than school reform battles against the social inequality that is reflected within rather than generated by our public school system

North Carolina Linking Study Northwest Evaluation Association,2014 Recently the Northwest Evaluation Association NWEA completed a study to connect the scale of the North Carolina State End of Grade EOG Testing Program used for North Carolina s mathematics and reading assessments with NWEA s Rausch Interval Unit RIT scale Information from the state assessments was used in a study to establish performance level scores on the RIT scale that would indicate a good chance of success on these tests To perform the analysis we linked together state test and NWEA test results for a sample of 18 730 North Carolina students who completed both exams in the spring of 2013 the term in which the EOG is administered For the spring season labeled current season an Equipercentile method was used to estimate the RIT score equivalent to each state performance level For fall labeled prior season we determined the percentage of the population within the selected study group that performed at each level on the state test and found the equivalent percentile ranges within the NWEA dataset to estimate the cut scores For example if 40% of the study group population in grade 3 mathematics performed below the proficient level on the state test we would find the RIT score that would be equivalent to the 40th percentile for the study population this would not be the same as the 40th percentile in the NWEA norms This RIT score would be the estimated point on the NWEA RIT scale that would be equivalent to the minimum score for proficiency on the state test Documentation about this method can be found on our website Table Sets 1 and 2 show the best estimate of the minimum RIT equivalent to each state performance level for same season spring and prior season fall RIT scores These tables can be used to identify students who may need additional help to perform well on these tests Table Sets 3 and 4 show the estimated probability of a student receiving a proficient score on the state assessment based on that student s RIT score These tables can be used to assist in identifying students who are not likely to pass these assessments thereby increasing the probability that intervention strategies will be planned and implemented These tables can also be useful for identifying target RIT score objectives likely to correspond to successful or proficient performance on the state test Table 5 shows the correlation coefficients between Measured Academic Performance MAP and the state test in each grade These statistics show the degree to which MAP and the state test are linearly related with values at or near 1.0 suggesting a perfect linear relationship and values near 0.0 indicating no linear relationship. Table 6 shows the percentages of students at each grade and within each subject whose status on the state test, i.e., whether or not the student met standards, was accurately predicted by their MAP performance and using the estimated cut scores within the current study. This table can be used to understand the predictive validity of MAP with respect to the EOG.

NWEA FAQ

Northwest Evaluation Association, 2015 Northwest Evaluation Association. NWEA conducts norming studies every several years to provide the best and most up-to-date information we can about student achievement and growth to better support educational decision making. It is an important part of our commitment to our partners. The most recent NWEA norms were released in July 2015. Just as we expect student performance to change with time, norms of student performance will change correspondingly. For 2015, several factors may have influenced how the U.S. school-age population performed on Measures of Academic Progress (MAP) assessments of language usage, mathematics, and reading over the 2011-12, 2012-13, and 2013-14 school years. Prominent among these possible factors are the introduction of Common Core instruction and Common Core versions of MAP. But as with all empirical studies, changes in scope and data necessitated changes in statistical design and analyses. The methodological improvements introduced in the 2015 norms have resulted in a set of norms that are more representative of the U.S. school-age population than previous NWEA norms. Methodological changes involved differences in the way post-stratification weights were developed and the way growth was modeled. Details of these changes are addressed more thoroughly in the 2015 Norms Study. As a result of the improved methodology, partners can expect some differences from previous norms as explained below.

2011 Normative Data Northwest Evaluation Association, 2017. Having the right data is a key component of individualizing instruction for each child. The Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA) has the ability to measure a student's achievement and academic growth independent of grade across time. From the insight provided with Measures of Academic Progress (MAP) and its reports, educators can compare class or grade-level performance to students from a wide variety of schools across the country. Status norms provide a starting point for educators to review data and help them gain an understanding of each child's current academic level where they need focused instruction and the extent of their progress. The 2011 NWEA RIT Scale Norms Study provides growth and status norms for all five RIT scales: Reading, Language Usage, Mathematics, General Science, and Science Concepts and Processes.

Smarter Balanced Preliminary Performance Levels Northwest Evaluation Association, 2015. Recently the Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium (Smarter Balanced) released a document that established initial performance levels and the associated threshold scale scores for the Smarter Balanced assessment. The report included estimated percentages of students expected to perform at each of the four performance levels reported by grade and test subject (e.g., English Language Arts or Mathematics) based on preliminary field testing of the Smarter Balanced assessment conducted during the spring of 2014. These threshold scale scores and expected percentages represent a preliminary attempt at standard setting, and Smarter Balanced may revise them after the spring 2015 testing term Nevertheless they represent the best information currently available about the cut scores that will be used during the spring 2015 testing term of the Smarter Balanced test Using the information provided within the Smarter Balanced report about the percentages of students expected to perform at each level Northwest Evaluation Association NWEA conducted a series of analyses to examine what Measures of Academic Progress MAP interim assessment scores might be associated with these performance level categories This was not an empirical study in the manner of our normal scale linking studies because the Smarter Balanced assessment has not yet been fully implemented NWEA intends to work with its partner school districts to conduct such a study examining the relationship between MAP performance and Smarter Balanced performance for individual students once Smarter Balanced has been fully implemented within NWEA partner districts NWEA analyses focused on the percentages of students expected to perform within each of the Smarter Balanced performance levels NWEA compared these percentages to our own nationally representative normative distributions in order to estimate the MAP scores that would produce similar percentages of students as those expected to fall within the Smarter Balanced performance level categories The approach taken here is quite similar to the approach used in many prior linking studies and can provide highly accurate estimates of cut scores Links used in this document are contained in the appendix
